

Vineyard Region
McLaren Vale

87 Points

Its sub-title is “Giacomo” and according to the back label, “Giacomo Rosé Jester celebrates the era where boredom was alleviated through humour and the banal through intellect. Amen to that. The wine itself comes across as a clash of cultures. It has both a light savouriness and sweeter fruit notes. Citrus, lemon sherbet, strawberry, sweet cherry. Easy to quaff, for sure. And best served well chilled.

Winefront.com, Campbell Mattinson, 25 September 2013

The Rosé season has well and truly kicked off. Warm barmy days call out for this type of wine. Funky hip happening and vibrant feel good flavours deliver with accompanying crisp acidity. Strawberries, rose petals, light musk and raspberries abound. As I said this is alive and out there and has a fair bit of spring in its step, pardon the pun. Delicious and easy drinking Sunday afternoon special. Try with taramasalata dip and warm pita bread.

Paulippolito.com, Paul Ippolito, 22 September 2013

There’s a real spring in the step of this new release that heralds the start of the warmer months ahead and the delights of alfresco dining. Pink and pretty, sweetish red berry fruit flavours, a hint of spice, zippy acidity and a clean, bone-dry finish.

Illawarra Mercury, Kerry Skinner, 19 October 2013

94 Points

Pale salmon-pink, the bouquet and palate overflow with waves of spiced red cherry fruit, the palate with a juicy entrance then moving to a slightly but pleasantly savoury finish. Sangiovese lends itself to rose production.

James Halliday Wine Companion, February 2014

94 Points

Pale salmon-pink; the bouquet and palate overflow with waves of spiced red cherry fruit, the palate with a juicy entrance, then moving to a slightly, but pleasantly, savoury finish. Sangiovese lends itself to rose production.

James Halliday Australian Wine Companion 2015